Why invest in a home business?

By Greg Rivera

Tired of having to wake up early just so you can avoid heavy traffic and arrive at your office before the clock says you are too early for the afternoon session? There might be a solution to that but it takes guts, talent and lots of hard work and determination.

You can avoid all the negative things associated with going to the office everyday by investing in a home based business. As the term denotes, a home based business refers to a business venture that is based right in the comforts of your home.

Most people dream of a home based job not only because it offers them an opportunity to work at home sans the hassle of going out and traveling to work everyday but also because of its financial rewards. A home based business may be risky because one never knows what fate awaits his business venture. However, a person who has successfully established a home based business has struck gold.

A home based business affords one all the freedom to do as he pleases and to operate his business using his own style and skills. On top of that, a home based business requires little capital and low overhead. Compared to a mall-based business which requires expensive rentals, a home based business requires no rent at all and this can be a favorable factor in the success of the business.

A person starting up a home based business will usually choose a business which is already familiar to him either because he is already practically in that business or it is his hobby. In such case, it is presumed that he already has most of the equipment needed to start the business. Most homes already have telephone connections so using a telephone for your home based business would no longer be an additional expense.

If you are already equipped with computers and printers you can also use them in your home based either for printing marketing leaflets or for setting up an inventory. You can even make your computer the basis of your new home business catering to the printing and computer requirements of your neighborhood.

A home business does not only allow minimal capital but it also creates savings for the businessman. The savings can be in the form of your budget for fuel, working clothes, vehicle depreciation and time which would be otherwise expended if you work somewhere else.

If you work for someone else, you get a fixed amount every month no matter the amount of effort you exert in your work. If you own a home based business, what you will earn will depend on how industrious you are and how dedicated you are to your business. Simply said, the more effort you exert in a home based business the better your financial rewards will be.

Why I Don't Invest In The Stock Market!

By John Colanzi

Why I Don't Invest In The Stock Market! by John Colanzi

I'm tired of hearing everyone from the President on down telling me to invest in the stock market.

If you want to help build America, invest in your business. This country was built by small business men and women.

I don't invest in the stock market because it's out of my control. I don't determine how the company is run or where their profits are placed.

On top of all that, the returns are really peanuts compared to what you can earn from a well run business. When the market dropped they said investors shouldn't worry they should have their money back in 5 years.

Guess what?

If I invest in a good program, I usually make back my investment plus within 5 minutes. Can the stock market do that?

I've invested in programs for $10 or $20 and made back 10 times that within 24 hours. I couldn't even cover the brokerage fees for the cost of starting a business online.

Take control of your future. Take responsibility for your success. You are the future.

Learn how to market on the internet and you'll never worry whether the economy is up or down. You're the boss. Your ability will determine your future.

Why are so many people more willing to invest in the markets and not in themselves?

They don't believe in themselves. They think big business will make the money for them.

I'm going to tell you something that I hope you take to heart. I know you can succeed. I know you can outperform the stock market.

I believe in you. Probably more than you believe in your - self.

Don't invest in the stock market. Invest in YOU INC.

In the words of Ben Franklin "Keep Thy Shop and Thy Shop will Keep Thee."

Take off your blinders and realize, you were born to succeed. Invest in you.

Wishing You Success
